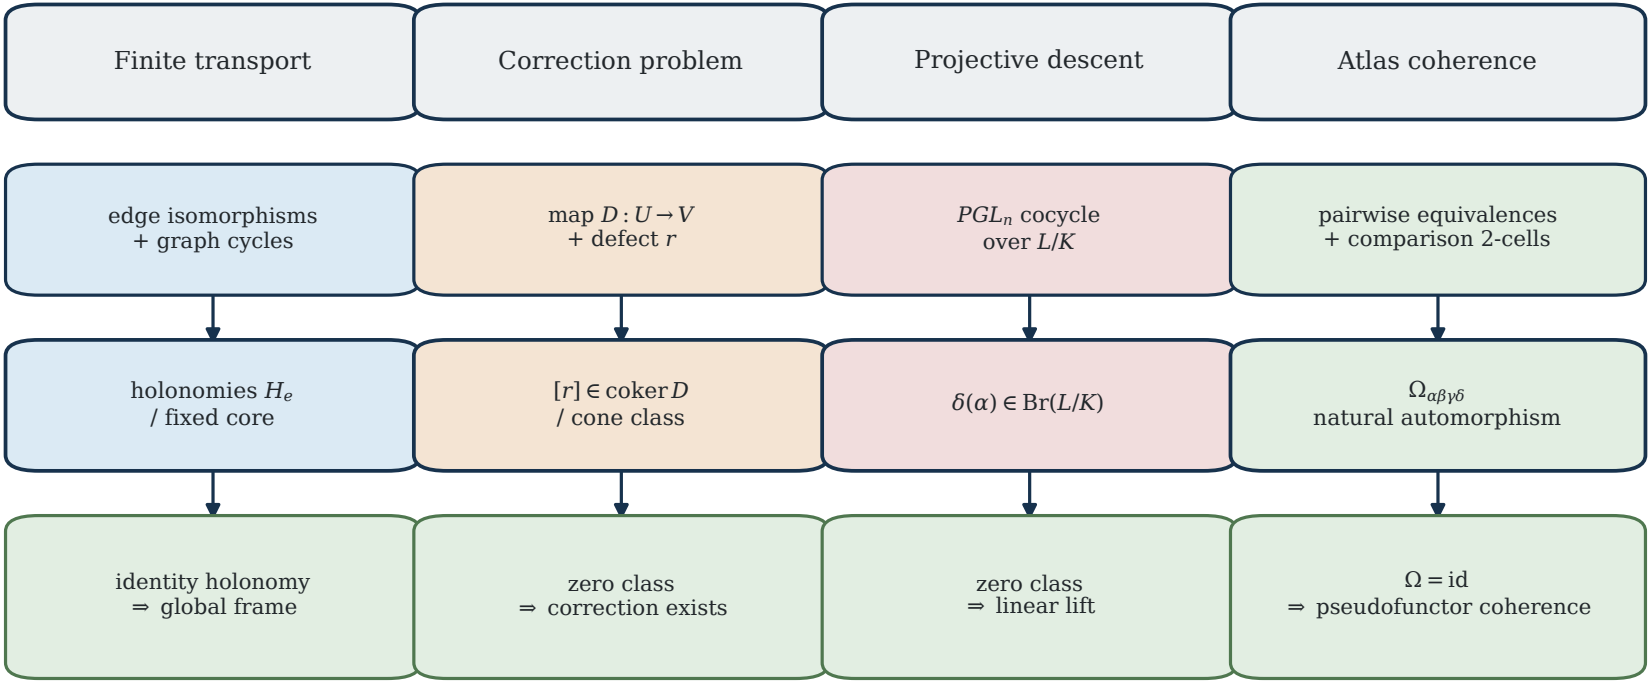
Four obstruction roles with different inputs and different vanishing conclusions



No cross-comparison is canonical until a typed map between the underlying data has been supplied.